Intended Audience:

My intended audience for my project is everyone who has access to technology and is able to view it. I also intend for this project to reach everyone who can try to make a positve difference in this world

Goals:

I created this digital project because my goals were to hopefully allow everyone who views my project to understand the happiness that I received from my trip, and I hope it inspires everyone to step out of their comfort zone and do something they think they may never do because it is truly a life changing experience. I also hope it catches the eye of my viewers an allows them to understand the struggles the Mentawai people face without clean water and limited supplies.

Explanation of the service trip:

-images and captions

Explain the issues the local face (Lack of Access):

-images
-evidence from outside sources (articles)

Conclusion:

-Explain ways we can make a difference

Final Product

Ethical and Inclusive Design:

The reason, I created this project was due to the issues of access. Every village on the island I lived with had no access to internet or Wi-Fi. Every chief I spoke with while living their explained to me that they have no way of communicating with the outside world unless it is in person. That is why many people do not understand the everyday struggles the locals face. That is why the goal of my project was to help be the voice for the local Mentawai people. Even though they do not have access to internet and cannot share their struggles in hopes people will help, if people like me who have the ability to post on the internet and help gain the attention of others, I can help try to eliminate the issue of the locals face of not being able to spread their needs due to the limitations of internet access.

Theme:

The theme of my project is to share my story and help educate those who are unaware of thr struggles many places face to due lack of access to technology
